

Privacy and Security of Personal Health Information

Policy

This practice is bound by the Federal Privacy Act (1988) and the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs) and also complies with the Victorian Health Records Act (2001). Mind@Home Psychiatry recognises the importance of protecting the privacy and the rights of individuals in relation to their personal information. This document outlines how we collect and manage your health information.

What is your personal information?

Personal information is information that identifies you or could reasonably identify you. Personal health information a particular subset of personal information can include any information collected and held to provide a health service. Our privacy policy covers all people who use our services or otherwise provide their personal information to us.

What personal information do we collect and hold?

The information Mind@Home Psychiatry collects includes medical details, family information, name, address, employment or other demographic data, past medical and social history, current health issues and future medical care, Medicare number, account details and any health information such as medical or personal opinions about a person's, disability or health status.

We may also collect some information that is not considered personal information as it does not identify you or anyone else. For example, we may collect de-identified responses to patient feedback surveys.

How do we collect your personal information?

- Directly from you when you attend our clinics
- As disclosed by you during your consultation at our clinic
- From third parties such as a referring health professional, employers, law enforcement agencies and other government entities.

What happens if we can't collect your personal information?

If you do not provide us with the personal information described above, the following may happen:

- Mind@Home Psychiatry may not be able to provide the requested service to you
- Your diagnosis or treatment may be inaccurate or incomplete

For what purpose do we collect, hold, use and disclose your personal information?

- To provide medical services and treatment to you
- For administrative and billing purposes
- Update our records and keep your details up to date
- To process and respond to any complaints made

- To comply with any law, rule and regulations
- For the purpose of data research and analysis
- For inclusion in a recall register for prevention of chronic disease
- For the purpose of reporting back to your employer
- To answer any queries about the services we provide to you
- To provide information to third parties with your consent
- To meet the obligations of notification to our medical defence organisations or insurers

Who do we disclose your information to?

- Personal information will only be used for the purpose of providing medical services and for claims and payments, unless consented otherwise
- Disclosure may occur to third parties engaged by the practice or for business purposes e.g. Practice Accreditation
- Mind@Home Psychiatry will inform the patient where there is a statutory requirement to disclose personal information (e.g. mandatory reporting of certain diseases)
- The practice will not disclose personal information to any third party other than those related to providing our medical services unless consent is obtained
- <Insert practice name> will not disclose personal information to anyone outside Australia without need and without patient consent.

Exceptions to disclose without patient consent are where the information is:

- Required by law
- Necessary to lessen or prevent a serious threat to a patient's life, health or safety or public health or safety, or it is impractical to obtain the patient's consent
- To assist in locating a missing person
- To establish, exercise or defend an equitable claim
- For the purpose of a confidential dispute resolution process.

At Mind@Home Psychiatry it is customary for all Doctors, Nurses, Allied Health Providers and, if necessary, Visiting Consultants to have access to your medical records. If you have any concerns about this, please discuss your concerns with your doctor.

It is important that other people involved in your care, such as other Doctors/Specialists/Allied Health Care providers, are informed of relevant parts of your medical history so they can best care for you. Should referral to another health care provider is required, after discussion with you your doctor will write a letter of referral containing your personal health information. If you have any concerns about this, please discuss with your doctor.

Direct Marketing

Mind@Home Psychiatry does not use or disclose the information we collect about you for direct marketing unless an exception applies, including where the individual either consents to the disclosure or has a reasonable expectation that their personal information will be used for direct marketing, and the organisation notifies the individual on how to 'opt out' of direct marketing communications. Direct marketing communications from Mind@Home Psychiatry may include information about our products and services and may be in the form of email, SMS, fax and mail.

How can you access and correct your personal information?

Mind@Home Psychiatry acknowledges patients may request access to their medical records. Patients are encouraged to make this request in writing, and Mind@Home Psychiatry will respond within a reasonable time. Mind@Home Psychiatry will take reasonable steps to correct personal information where it is satisfied they are not accurate or up to date. From time to time, Mind@Home

Psychiatry will ask patients to verify their personal information to ensure it is accurate and up to date. Patients may also request for this information to be corrected / updated in writing.

Security

Mind@Home Psychiatry takes all reasonable steps to ensure that your personal information is protected from loss and misuse. Mind@Home Psychiatry holds your information in both electronic and hard copy format. When your personal information is no longer needed it is destroyed or de-identified.
